I have the honor to present the Hoa. Bird & Coler who will be Tammany's next candidate for mayor.

The audience rose to the occasion and made a most noisy demonstration of their entire approval of Mr. Fromme's words for Fromme has since declared that he didn't use these words, but whatever he said, the entire audience understood him to refer to Mr. Coler as the next Tammany candidate for mayor, and the reception which Mr. Coler got was due, in large measure, to the fact that the audience believed that they were howing for Mr. Coler got up and spoke.

I thank you, gentlemen, he said. Then the crowd began to bawl, "Coler for mayor." Hurrah for Mayor Coler." Three cheers for the Tammany man. "Coler for mayor." What's the matter with Coler?" "Order and Coler forever." Once in a while a Mohican who had dined pretty well would sing out, "Remember John Scannell," referring to the controversy between Mr. Scannell and Mr. Coler over the purchase of supplies for the Fire Department. These interruptions to the general tide of Coler applause were so infrequent, however, bhat they made little difference. The applause for the comptroller lasted for three and a third minutes. It was interrrupted once in a while when an enthusiastic rooter would fall down and be nearly drowned in the ficod of beer which covered the entire floor before his friends could rescue him.

Mr. Coler went on in a little speech in which nearly drowned in the flood of beer which covered the entire floor before his friends could rescue him.

Mr Coler went on in a little speech in which he said that Commissioner Lantry was one of the grandest men that ever lived. This was a safe proposition to advance to the representatives of the Twenty-second Assembly district and they informed Mr. Coler in varying phrases that he was all right Mr. Coler didn't say anything about his ambition to be mayor of New York. Yesterday in speaking of the incident he said that he had a bully time at the dinner. This to go around wherever the citizens of New York gather, said Mr. Coler. I helieve that every only officer should become thoroughly acquainted with the people who pay the money that keeps 'the government going. I go to all sorts of affairs, and the nore I see of them and the people who attend them, the more I am impressed by the fact that this is a tremendously big city inhabited by a lot of good people. The dinner was a great success and the evident respect for and confidence in Mr. Lantry as demonstrated there by his followers, must be very gratifying to him.

LAWYER OFFENDS COURT.

Presiding Justice Van Brunt Sharply Reproved Citford W. Hartridge.

Clifford W Hartridge, son-in-law of Jus tice Russell of the Supreme Court, was called to task by Presiding Justice Van Brunt at the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday for declaring that the Metropolitan treet Railway Company had an undue infuence at court. Mr Hartridge appeared for Benjamin Oppenhelm in proceedings brought against him for disbarment because of the alleged conduct of Oppenheim in a suit to recover damages from the street

The action was brought in behalf of Harriet Nugent, a child, who was injured by a car Augent, a child, who was injured by a car on May 8, 1898, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Prof. Sarkent, optician, arrived in Fort Plain on a late train last night with his bride and prevailed upon a liveryman to get the two to Mrs. Sargent's home, three miles from here. When about hait way to their destination the horses became stalled. After all hands had suffered greatly from exposure, the driver managed to make himself heard at a farmhouse. Help was obtained, and after hard work rescue was accomplished.

CROWDS ON THE BRIDGE.

Twenty Extra Ticket Sellers Stationed in the Approaches to the Boxes.

The increase in bridge traffic for the last few days, caused by the uncertainty of ferry travel on the East River, has been so great that the difficulty in handling the crowds. especially during the rush hours, has swamped those ticket sellers who handle elevated tickets only for the various Brooklyn lines tickets only for the various Brooklyn lines. There has been so much grumbling from passengers that last night the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Cempany had about twenty men stationed in the approaches to the ticket boxes, selling tickets. The scheme being new did not work so well at first, but as soon as a few of the crowd began to buy tickets the sellers had all they could do and from then on everything moved along more smoothly. The extra men will be on duty every night as long as the present big crowds travel to Brooklyn by way of the bridge.
